

81 Normanby Road, Inglewood

A rare jewel transformed beyond its former glory

Brand new high quality renovations and extensive remodeling to the kitchen, family room, informal dining and alfresco at the rear combine tastefully with the elegance of the early 1900's out front.

This charming period home has been transformed to breathe life into your family plans.

The end result is a great home for a family that needs room to grow. The theatre room could easily convert into a 4th bedroom without putting a dent into your lifestyle and one of the original bedrooms could quite possibly be home to three children and still have space in the middle for them to play.

If significant street appeal is important this home you are considering will bring a satisfied smile to your face every time you pull in the driveway.

The party can spill outside through bi-fold doors to the alfresco area that is sufficiently well sheltered to let you enjoy the outdoors all year round.

Summers you can cool off in the secret lagoon plunge pool tucked privately away to the rear of the home and if you can't find a use for the workshop attached to the rear garage let me know, I'm sure I can find a motoring enthusiast to borrow it off you.

Located in a quiet tree lined street literally a stone's throw from Inglewood
